

Llama born at animal farm

The Pocono Wild Animal Farm, Stroudsburg, has two new "lodgers." A baby llama was born at the farm Thursday and a baby tapir was flown in from South America two weeks ago.

According to Mrs. Claude Leister, owner of the farm, the tapir is of particular prehistoric interest. It is said to be the ancestor to the horse and rhinoceros.

Two distinguished visitors will be at the wild animal farm on Saturday. They are Arthur Watson, director of the Baltimore, Md., zoo and Christopher Coates, long time director of the New York Aquarium.

Watson is a well known zoologist and world traveler. For many years Coates wrote a column on tropical and exotic tank fish for the now defunct New York Sun.

U.S. bombers hit highlands; North believed in buildup

SAIGON (AP) — A North Vietnamese buildup in a new area of the central highlands alerted U.S. officials Thursday to the possibility that the next enemy blow may be struck there.

In response to the threat, U.S. B-52s, the heavyweights of the Air Force, struck six times Wednesday and early Thursday in the area north of Ban Me Thuot, capital of Darlac Province.

"If there's going to be any action, it looks now like it will be in Darlac Province," a senior U.S. officer said.

"There are good sized concentrations in there," another officer reported. "You might say they have rehabilitated the area."

Ban Me Thuot is about 110 miles south of the area of Kontum, hitherto considered the most likely point for an enemy drive designed to cut South Vietnam in two.

But intelligence reports say the North Vietnamese in the Kontum area near the borders of Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam have been on the move to the south.

There was no estimate of the size of the force moving into Darlac Province. But enemy forces deployed in the central highlands previously have been identified as six regiments, each of about 1,500 men.

There also was an outbreak of fighting in the north, where South Korean marines beat off an attack by more than 200 North Vietnamese before dawn 11 miles south of Da Nang, the big U.S. base complex. A military spokesman said the Koreans killed 32 of the enemy and captured six. No Korean casualties were reported.

Elsewhere, the command said, fighting was light and scattered.

ESSC given $5 million under bill

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College is in line for more than $5 million for capital improvements and land acquisition from the General State Authority in the next two years according to the massive $700 million, GSA bill signed Thursday by Governor Raymond Shafer.

According to the bill the local state college will receive the following:

Classroom building, $1,250,000; estimated construction costs, $300,000. Land acquisition, $302,000. Improvements in dining hall, $100,000.

Library additions, $1,254,800. Dormitory facility, $1,500,000. Administration building, $508,000 and $58,500 for land acquisition.

Also included in the massive bill was an appropriation of $300,692 for a driving examination point and sub station in the county with $21,590 allotted for land purchase.

OEO aide charged with conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., said Thursday the deputy director of an anti-poverty program is also on the board of a private firm with a $1 million contract with the Office of Economic Opportunity.

She said in a House speech that Richard Frost, a $1,000-a-month official with an Upward Bound project in Oregon, also serves as a $100-a-day consultant to Educational Associates, which she said has a contract with the OEO to review applications for Upward Bound grants.

Upward Bound is a program administered by the OEO aimed at helping potential high school dropouts remain in school and go on to higher learning.

She said Frost, former director of Upward Bound, resigned that position on Aug. 1, 1967 and became a member of the advisory board of educational associates, which had received an OEO contract a month earlier.

Grand jury indicts Newark's top policeman

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Police Director Dominick A. Spina, a tough cop who said he loved his work, was indicted by a grand jury Thursday on a charge of "willfully refusing" to crack down on gambling operations.

Spina, who began his police career pounding a beat in 1933, was charged with four counts of "nonfeasance" in an indictment handed up to Superior Court Judge Walter H. Conklin.

The police director said he intends to plead innocent, and that his attorney would seek an "immediate trial."

Spina, who spoke to newsmen in his City Hall office but refused to go before television cameras, termed the grand jury allegations "completely without merit."

He offered to resign his post, but Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio refused to accept it. The mayor said:

"The failure of the grand jury to call Director Spina and extend to him the opportunity to testify borders on the incredible, and I cannot destroy the officers magnificent career before he has had his day in open court."

If convicted on all four counts, Spina faces a maximum sentence of 12 years imprisonment and $4,000 in fines.

Spina, 57, was the target of a pair of would-be assassins who fired a shotgun blast through his living room window early Tuesday, nearly hitting him. He described the gunmen as Negroes and said they may have been linked to black revolutionary groups.

The police director's six years in office have been marked by controversy, especially in the area of civil rights. Several Negro leaders have called for his dismissal, particularly after the 1967 riot which left 26 persons dead and hundreds injured.

The grand jury which returned the indictment has recessed until Sept. 10.

The graying police director, a former amateur boxer and a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve, said he loved police work so much "I became addicted to it."

Top Czech liberal ousted; move may ease tension

Prague abolishes political post

PRAGUE (AP)—A key figure in Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive lost his post Thursday night in what seemed to be a dramatic gesture by the new Prague leadership to pacify the Soviet Union.

Virtually on the eve of its showdown talks with the Soviet politbureau, the Czechoslovak party presidium ordered Lt. Gen. Vaclav Priblik, a chief target of Soviet attacks against the new regime, to return to army service from an important party position.

The presidium abolished the political department that controls the army, the security police and the judiciary. Priblik had headed the department.

The development came after the Soviet Union was reported to have stopped the flow of Russian tourists to Czechoslovakia as Prague's reform-Communist leaders prepared for a showdown with top Kremlin officials.

The tourist ban could be interpreted as adding an economic phase to Soviet political and military pressure against Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive.

Abolition of Priblik's State Administration Department of the party Central Committee came three days after the Soviet Defense Ministry paper Red Star assailed him for publicly denouncing the delay in withdrawal of Soviet troops from Czechoslovakia after Warsaw Pact war games in June.

Priblik, 45, played a major role in toppling old-guard party chairman, Antonin Novotny, last January. He was then given the departmental post.

The reformists hope to oust many old-line Communists from the Central Committee during the congress in September.

In another development Thursday, the Czechoslovak Defense Ministry rejected a London newspaper's claim that it had received information on a Czechoslovak army plan to defend the country against a possible invasion by Soviet troops.

The Soviet travel restrictions were reported in the newspaper Vecerni Praha. Evening Prague. The paper said the government travel bureau Cedok had been advised that its Soviet counterpart, Intourist, had canceled all group tours scheduled for July.

The denial of the story of an anti-Soviet Defense plan, printed in the London Evening News, was issued by a Defense Ministry spokesman, Lt. Col. Frantisek Kudrna.

"I am authorized to say that the whole report is fabricated," he said. "The Czechoslovak People's Army is a firm component of the defense system of the Socialist countries."

"The Czechoslovak army will also in the future work for strength, cooperation and friendship with the armies of the Warsaw Treaty countries."

The Evening News claimed to have gotten its information from high army quarters.

The trade union paper Prace warned Czechoslovaks that the forthcoming meeting of the Czechoslovak presidium with the Soviet Communist party politburo will be "very difficult."

Russians continue dickering

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced more military maneuvers Thursday and stepped up its propaganda campaign against Czechoslovakia's reformist leaders by linking them with Mao Tse-tung.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met in the Kremlin with Czechoslovak Foreign Trade Minister Vaclav Vales to discuss trade between the two countries, which could serve as a means of exerting economic pressure. They were reported to have taken up "questions of mutual interest during a friendly talk."

Kosygin's presence in Moscow countered speculation that a scheduled meeting between the 11-man Soviet Communist party Politburo and the Czechoslovak Presidium in Czechoslovakia had already started.

Soviet moves indicated an escalation in the war of nerves against Alexander Dubcek's Prague regime before the showdown, which Prague sources expect to take place early next week.

Russian authorities said an anti-aircraft exercise called Sky Shield is now under way. This announcement came only 36 hours after the Soviet armed forces started logistic maneuvers in the western part of the country, including that along the Czechoslovak border.

Soviet troops also were reported on the move in parts of East Germany, which adjoins Czechoslovakia on the north. However, this is the usual time of year for maneuvers.

The peripheral activity followed the slow withdrawal of Soviet regiments after completion of Warsaw Pact maneuvers in Czechoslovakia last month and could serve as a cover for preparations for military intervention.

In what appeared to be a further attempt to discredit the Czechoslovak leadership, Pravda lumped it together with Red China's Mao, who is depicted here as a traitor to true Communism.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said Mao and rightists—a term used here to embrace Czechoslovak liberals—are "united by a striving to replace Leninism by so-called national versions."

It accused the "rightists" and Mao of "turning away from Socialist (Communist) internationalism and turning toward bourgeois nationalism."

Nationalism in other Communist countries undercuts Soviet influence and is opposed by the Kremlin.

Ted Kennedy urged to run; also told to remain out

Mansfield

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana advised Sen. Edward M. Kennedy Thursday to stick to the Senate and avoid becoming involved in a vice presidential contest.

Mansfield told the Senate that Kennedy would be "a must suitable. Democratic candidate for the vice presidency." But he added that because of the recent tragedy of his brother Robert's assassination the best debt that could be paid to the Massachusetts senator would be to leave him "in the name of decency to his own quiet and counsel at this time."

Cleveland curfew; Guard, police patrol

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Carl Stokes imposed a curfew on the troubled East Side Thursday night but said the use of black community leaders to calm the area was not a failure.

"National Guard and white police will go into the area to insure that the curfew is kept and the people kept off the streets," Stokes told newsmen.

The curfew will affect the Glenville neighborhood in the East Side and will be in effect from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Stokes said he planned a meeting with safety officials, Police Chief Michael Blackwell and Ohio Adj. Gen. Sylvester Del Corso to work out details.

"In something like this I will have to rely on their professional judgement," Stokes said.

Stokes said that he did not believe "black leadership had failed. They had requested a 24-hour period to quell tension and this they had accomplished."

"Their job was ended," Stokes added, "but there was still a need to keep people—mainly youngsters—off the streets and end the looting."

Stokes said, "No civilians, including newsmen, would be permitted into the cordoned-off area."

The six-square mile area includes most of the Hough neighborhood which was the scene of looting and burning in 1966.

The Rev. Baxter Hill and some 50 other black leaders were with Stokes when the curfew announcement was made.

"The Rev. Mr. Hill said, 'We're turning the community back to the mayor.' The Negro leaders voted Thursday to end their patrolling and they thanked Stokes for his confidence in them."

Gen. Del Corso told newsmen that the Guardsmen in the area "would shoot only if a looter was caught and resisted arrest. I don't anticipate that there will be a necessity for shooting."

Earlier Thursday, Stokes said, "We do not think the danger has passed." Less than an hour later his words were reinforced by an anonymously telephoned bomb threat on his life.

Alfred Fred Evans, a Black Nationalist held since Wednesday after telling police he organized the sniper nest, was charged with shooting with intent to kill, possession of narcotics, and possession of a carbine.

New Jersey gun dealer arrested

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — A gun dealer Thursday became the fourth man to be charged with violating New Jersey's gun control law in connection with the allegedly illegal sale of a pistol used by a Central Park sniper.

The dealer, James Brown of Lakehurst, was arrested Thursday on six charges of violating the state gun law. He is free on $1,000 bail.

Earlier this month, three Jackson Township men, including two policemen, were arrested on gun charges brought against them by the Ocean County grand jury.

The grand jury was probing an alleged string of illegal gun exchanges which ended with the murders of two persons in New York July 3.

The sniper was identified as Angel Angelot, who was shot to death by police during a subsequent gun battle.

Brown was charged with buying the 45-caliber Smith and Wesson model 1917 revolver without a purchase permit sometime between Jan. 1 and July 3 of this year.

The indictment said he bought the gun from a Toms River gun dealer.

Other charges include: possessing the gun without a permit; selling the gun to Jackson Township Patrolman Franklin White without requiring the policeman to have a permit; failing to enter the White sale in the required state sales register; failing to require White to sign the sales register, and failing to send the sales register to both the Jackson Township chief of police and the superintendent of state police.

The other men who are free on $1,000 bail are White, Special Officer Gustav Landi and Kiril Dimulirov.

All four men are scheduled to enter their pleas Friday before Judge William E. O'Connor in Toms River.

Their attorney asked the chief to not take any action until the county court has dispensed with their cases.

Doctors disagree with statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four medical specialists in different parts of the country Thursday voiced complete or partial disagreement with the statement of Dr. Denton A. Cooley, a Texas heart-transplant surgeon, that "cardiac transplantation has reached the point where, if properly performed, it could be considered a therapeutic measure... and no longer as an investigational procedure."

The four commented in telephone interviews.

A fifth, Dr. George E. Burch of New Orleans, president of the 3,500-member American College of Cardiology, said his organization considers it "too soon to endorse any policy concerning whether or not cardiac transplantation is an acceptable therapeutic procedure."

Dr. Cooley, of St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, Houston, who has supervised more heart-transplant operations than any other surgeon in the world—made his statement to newsmen Monday, two days after the sixth heart-transplant operation at that hospital. Since then, still another has been performed by the Houston team.

Only one of the four doctors making direct comments on Cooley's statement said he was in complete disagreement with the Texas view—and all described him as one of the world's most skillful surgeons. Furthermore, all said they agreed fully with Cooley's statement that heart-transplant operations "should no longer be considered surgical feats or surgical spectacles." The complete dissenter to Cooley's statement that cardiac transplantation could be considered to have now graduated from investigational to treatment status—is a surgeon at the government's National Heart Institute, Bethesda, Md., who declined to be quoted by name.

"Cooley may be right, but I don't think so. I believe there is not yet evidence that cardiac transplantation is a useful form of treatment," this surgeon said.

"Cardiac transplantation," the Bethesda surgeon said, "may eventually prove to be a useful palliative (temporarily easing) treatment, but I don't think it has been so proven to date."

The director of the National Heart Institute—Dr. Theodore Cooper—voiced partial dissent to Cooley's views.

Cooper said that in his opinion cardiac transplantation is "clearly therapeutic" for patients requiring it, "but it's still also in the investigational state."

From Pittsburgh, Pa., Dr. Campbell Moses, medical director of the American Heart Association, also voiced a somewhat qualified dissent.

"Based on experiences around the world in cardiac transplantation," he said, "it doesn't seem that Dr. Cooley's statement is quite true as yet. It seems a little premature, although in his hands, the short-term results, at least, seem obviously very good."

Sen. Scott questions Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., says a poll shows Richard M. Nixon would lose Philadelphia by a large margin as the Republican presidential candidate.

And a group of Nixon backers in Pennsylvania has proposed a list of possible vice presidential candidates that would give him strength in the cities.

Scott, a supporter of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for the Republican presidential nomination, said the poll showing the former vice president would not run well in Philadelphia was taken by William J. Devlin, Republican chairman in Philadelphia.

The Nixon for President Committee in Pennsylvania, meanwhile, sent a list of possible candidates to the former vice president.

Arlin M. Adams, chairman of the Nixon group, said the list consisted of New York Mayor John Lindsay, former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, Sen. Jacob Javits of New York and Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

In Democratic politics, Michael H. Mullin, chairman of the Pennsylvania Citizens for McCarthy, said Thursday some of his followers will try to unseat some regular party delegates at the Democratic National Convention.

Volunteer claims U.S. won't admit it

Vietnam people know war's lost

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The populace of Vietnam knows the United States has lost the war—only the United States won't admit it, says a young American just returned from 18 months of volunteer work there.

"The ordinary people—the peasants and the shopkeepers—really support the National Liberation Front," said Carl Strock, 24, of Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

The proof of this support, said Strock, who served in Vietnam with the American Friends Service Committee's VISA program (Voluntary International Service Assignment), came during the Tet Offensive and the May offensive.

Strock, who witnessed both while living with Vietnamese families in Pleiku and Saigon, said "the PLAF—People's Liberation Armed Forces—were able to move into the towns in advance" to lay in supplies and build tunnels because the people supported them.

Strock, now on assignment at the Friends (Quakers) Service Committee headquarters here, said in an interview Thursday that this support is hard for most Americans to imagine.

He compared it to popular support for the French Resistance in World War II.

"The NLF is like the French Marquis and the Saigon Government is like the Vichy government in France and the Americans are like the Germans—an occupation force," said Strock, dark-haired and dark-eyed relief worker.

Strock, who speaks Vietnamese, said usually the attitude toward the NLF—even in Saigon—is very favorable, almost like Robin Hood.

He said that contrary to American propaganda among the villagers, most described National Liberation Front soldiers (Vietcong) as polite and respectful. He said he was told the Viet Cong never steal from villages, never enter homes without being invited and treat elders with respect.

Terrorism? "That's confined to the enemies of the ordinary people—like a tax collector or a military chief sent out of Saigon," said Strock.

About the military action itself, Strock said, "The war is in the last stage now. The military situation is irretrievable for the United States."

Referring to the "enclave theory" advanced some time ago by Gen. James Gavin, Strock said, "The enclaves were reached six months ago. The enclaves are not shrinking and less pressure on the NLF because of the U.S. aircraft shortage."

Viet Cong takeover of the back country of most of South Vietnam forced the shutdown of the VISA program in Vietnam, he said. Ten VISA volunteers were brought back to Saigon several months ago because of the danger to Americans out side areas protected by U.S. forces, he said.

The next battle of Saigon, he said, should be critical because of what he felt to be strong support for the Viet Cong in the slum areas of the city. "Many of the people in the slums are refugees from U.S. bombing and have relatives in the NLF, so there's no question of whom they will support," he said. "It's just a question of hiding supplies and arms."

Your Horoscope

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You must recognize your limitations, of course, but aim to increase your boundaries judiciously, through earnest, intelligent study and observation, and you will progress the sure, lasting way: Start NOW!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — According to your properly set up program, are you up to, or behind, schedule? Side-stepping important details? Ask yourself these questions, and having answered forthrightly, make adjustments if necessary.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Ask yourself, like Taurus, if your program is properly drawn up. Are you following through in a valid, effectual manner? Protect your due rights and privileges through responsible action. Stress accuracy.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some spectacular situations are indicated, but certain "dull" matters will require attention nonetheless. Stress clear-cut thinking, judicious penetration, levelheadedness.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — What you ordinarily do may not be the thing now. A favorite activity or pastime may have to be by-passed. Meet eventualities with perception and poise.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — This could be a livelier day than anticipated, but Virgoans can meet all situations with grace and agility. If day does NOT please in part, it's for YOU to work on, remedy.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Take a dignified approach to all problems now. In personal relationships there may be some differences to recognize, cope with.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Note the questions others ask, where they place their trust. This is not so that you may follow, but as a guide in using your own powers of evaluation.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — A tip-top period for achieving happiness through personal relationships — especially with family and close friends. Make this day stand out!

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Some expansions approved; retrenching needed in other areas. Be equal to your obligations. You have an innate sense of propriety; make it work potently.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Especially favored now: Students, teachers, technicians. Make the most of your skills and adaptability.

Even if gains seem slow in coming, take all in stride.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Be discriminating in what you say and how you act now. Efforts will be judged first on content and intent, then on quality. The middle road means "safe", not just expedient.

YOU BORN TODAY are a vivacious companion and worker, though tend, at times, to sit back and enjoy the comforts you like, forgetting that time and opportunities can pass you by. Once you marshal your talents and emphasize your most endearing traits, you can reach a high position and retain your friends along the way. But the Leoite often battles his friends even when he least expects to. Curb that impulsiveness! One thing sure: You staunchly defend both principles and persons against many odds. You are idealistic, expressive; would make an excellent writer or worker in humanitarian causes. Birthdate of: George Bernard Shaw, dramatist, critic; Jean-Baptiste Corot, landscape painter.

Pike antique show underway

MILFORD — Throngs of tourists and Pike County residents swarmed into the Milford Elementary school Thursday for the opening of the Fifth Annual Antique Sale and Show set to run through Saturday.

Antique lovers and interested browsers, perhaps led indoors by cloudy skies and cool temperatures picked the opening hours of the show to filter into the capacity filled main floor of the school building.

Sale officials estimated that more than 150 tickets were sold by 2 p.m., only two hours after the annual affair officially opened.

Sponsored by the Pike County Humane Society, the display covers all facets of the antique business including, collectors items, water colors and prints, glass china, wooden items, and small furniture.

Arranged in a pre-planned floor scheme the exhibitors included, Catherine Zellner, Ogdensburg, N.J.; Bisque and glass; Jean Bruno, Rutherford, N.J. glass Bisque and figurines, plus unusual bric-a-brac.

Also were the Maguires of Rahway, N.J. displaying glass china and other items; Elsie Kayton of Milford, displaying primitives and General use. Mrs. Kayton said that sales have been "good" early after the opening of the show and estimated that the crowd has been better, so far, to last season's.

Also displaying are, The Copper Kettle, by E. Campbell and W. Lawson of Lake Owassa at Culver's Lake, N.J. with a general line.

Rosbach's Antiques of Dingman's Ferry presented signed art glass, Mary Gregory, and cut glass and china.

General line lamps and furniture were tastefully displayed by Dorothy L. Daniels of Berkely Heights, N.J.; Ceilbar Antiques of Milford presented wooden and iron primitives, as well as glass and china.

Coins were also a part of the show presented for display by the Country Land Antiques, also of Milford, who also presented primitive and general line antiques.

Miryle Binns of Rutherford, N.J. present at the popular show, had her display of decorative items including porcelain and glass.

Any Milo of Elizabeth, N.J. displayed jewelry.

On the right side of the entrance the Ross's Apple Valley Village of Milford, presented furniture and glass, china collectables.

Birch Knoll Antiques of Morris Plains, N.J. displayed country furniture, brass copper, tin, iron, and pattern glass.

In the next booth Grayce Lenga of Sun Hill Farm from nearby Bushkill, displayed early American Furniture, cut glass, pressed glass, and porcelain pieces, while Alieze Buchardt of Union, N.J. presented dolls, furniture and general antiques.

Refreshments were also served in the school kitchen for those attending the popular showing.

Committee chairmen for the show and sale are; Mrs. Bruce Rosbach, dealers; Mrs. James Black, secretary; Mrs. Milton Saltzman, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Phillips Sr., hostess; Mrs. Shouse Lewis, tickets; Mrs. Allen Greening, dealer's meals; Miss Barbara Grebenstein, publicity; Ross Klenstuber, signs.

Also Mrs. Norman Lehde, food sale, and Norman Lehde, reporter.

Club officers are, Mrs. Ernest White, president; Gly Rowe, vice-president; Mrs. James Black, secretary; Mrs. Milton Saltzman, treasurer, and Carol Arnold, corresponding secretary.

The show will continue today and tomorrow in the Pike schoolhouse.

Frank Uridel, Newfoundland; Guy Harnish, Ledgedale; and two professional organists from Scranton.

Final plans for the Extravaganza (this is the Second Annual), were completed during this week's meeting of the club at White Beauty View Resort on Lake Wallenpaupack at which Dr. George Laird presided.

'Art films' shown at Center

By PAT WILLIAMS
Pocono Record Reviewer

NEWFOUNDLAND — Young film makers presented new ideas in films at the Newfoundland Art Center Monday night and discussed their offerings with the audience after they were shown.

Called "underground films" the pictures included black and white and color, silent and sound, in varying degrees of familiarity.

Michael Becker showed three films which he termed a departure from the usual visual exercises. Of all the films shown, his three, using montage, stroboscopic black and white and telescopic action, were the most familiar of the innovations in current films.

Hunter Jay and Becker, discussed the meaning of the term underground. They agreed that it does not have a connotation of illicitness as films driven underground, nor does it mean a movement intended to disrupt current techniques.

Rather, the two young men felt that the films stood alone in experimentation which may or may not be taken over by the film industry.

A film called "Balls" concerned the photographers contention that man is a billiard ball being hit with a cue stick and having no free will.

A collection of three films by Mark Sadan concerned nude black and white female studies which by no means could be termed lascivious. In fact, in small discussion groups a feeling was expressed that Sadan had not achieved what viewers felt he tried to put across: "New Venus," a visual study of a pubescent girl fell far short of the voluptuousness the title implied; "Rosebud," a visual study of a pregnant woman lacked impact for those who could not or have not been in the condition; and "Waiting," three girls in hospital gowns bored the audience while they did just that.

The underground films were presented in line with the Newfoundland Arts Center policy of presenting all areas of theater and the arts. Their current melodrama, "East Lynne," will run until August 14.

Milford GI killed in Vietnam

MILFORD — Captain John Bruce Reed of Schoepce Road, Milford, a 32 year old Green Beret, was reported killed in action in Vietnam.

According to the Department of Defense, Reed died on July 4 from wounds received when on a combat operation and encountering a hostile force.

His recent assignment was with the Command and Control Detachment of the Fifth Special Forces Group in Vietnam. It was the seventh month of his second tour of duty in Vietnam when he was killed and Reed had just signed up for the third stay.

He also served as a Master Paratrooper in the Army.

Unique service set Sunday

NEWFOUNDLAND — Although music and the dance have always been strangely interwoven in religious ceremonies of an earlier day, they are only now being introduced in contemporary worship.

And music, dance and religion will form an unique combination on Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Newfoundland Arts Center, when Vacationland Ministries sponsors Norris O'Neill and Cindy Pierce in a program of folk music and interpretive dance.

It is all a part of the 1968 series, "The World Church in Action," when the speaker will be Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, America's leading Quaker and a world famous professor and churchman.

The musical program will include original songs by Mr. O'Neill and choreography by Miss Pierce. This combination assures the viewer an evening of stimulating entertainment.

Cindy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pierce, of Scranton, has been involved in the local entertainment field for some time. Dancing since the age of six, Cindy performed with the Scranton Ballet Guild in three Northeast Radio City Music Hall in New York City; taught ballet with Mrs. Constance Reynolds at Marywood College; and is currently instructing modern dance at the Farmingdale Cultural Arts Center, Long Island, N.Y.

Her performance credits while a Speech and Drama major at Marywood include Nancy Twinkle in "Little Mary Sunshine;" Tiesl in "The Sound of Music;" and the title role in "Peter Pan."

Cindy also choreographed "Carousel," "The Fantasticks," "Little Mary Sunshine," "Cinderella," and "Pinocchio."

Now employed as an English teacher at Simson Junior High School, South Huntington, L. I., she heads the Dramatics Club.

Kistler ends boot camp

GREENTOWN — Barry Kistler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kistler, Promised Land, will complete his boot training at Great Lakes Naval Training Station this weekend, and will return home on leave after that time.

The local youth, who enlisted for four years, was graduated in December from Pennsylvania State University, and has been working in plant pathology near the University since that time.

Returning home at the same time are Barry's sister and family, Staff Sergeant and Mrs. Reuben Shiffler and son, Mark.

Bus contract not on bid

East Stroudsburg School Board this week awarded a three-year school bus contract to W. R. Cramer Trucking, Inc., at a cost of 24 cents per mile.

It has been brought to our attention that the contract may not have been presented to the lowest bidder. However, we since have learned that the bus contracts are let on a proposal basis and it is not necessary to let the contract to the lowest bidder, although Cramer actually was the low bidder in this case.

In addition to the Cramer bid, E. M. Rinehart, Inc. presented a bid of 24.9 cents per mile and Delaware Valley Transportation Co. submitted a bid of 44 cents a mile.

However, the Delaware Valley bid included the price of a driver and fuel per mile, while the other bids were for bus service only.

The school board figures that its buses travel 793.5 miles per day for regular transportation and approximately 161,841 miles per year for all forms of transportation.

It was also figured by the board that drivers cost .1395 per mile and fuel approximately five cents per mile.

Annual cost

Listing the drivers at 14 cents per mile, we figure that Cramer's overall cost will be $69,591.63 per year. Rinehart would be next in line with a figure of $71,048.20 and Delaware Valley a close third at $71,210.04.

Delaware Valley first submitted a proposal of 40 cents for regular school transportation and 50 cents per mile for extra curricular activity. But, later the company presented the school board a flat 44 cents per mile rate, which includes fuel and drivers.

Cramer's rate per mile amounted to 43 cents, when bus, driver and fuel were taken into consideration. Rinehart's figure was 43.9 cents per mile. Actually, there was very little to choose between the three bids on a financial basis. However, five members of the school board felt that there were fringe benefits that called for the selection of the Cramer proposal.

Cramer had dropped his per mile charge from 26 to 24 cents and promised to have all 1968 school buses in operation, as did Rinehart. Delaware Valley said that none of the buses would be older than six years and that two buses would be replaced each year. The newer Delaware Valley buses would be used on the longer runs. Cramer also pointed out that his buses would be for the sole use of the school.

Provides insurance

Each of the contractors agreed to provide and maintain at his expense public liability and property damage insurance of not less than $500,000, naming the school as co-insured. Each also agreed to provide a spare bus on 30 minutes' notice of any breakdown or accident.

It was also learned that the school board liked the idea of hiring its own drivers, thus having them directly under the control of the school and its board. Each bus must be lettered "East Stroudsburg Area School District." Each of the buses stipulated will be under contract for 180 school days — plus added events during the school year.

Rinehart had agreed to purchase nine new school buses at a price of $26,900, while both Delaware Valley and Cramer listed the price at $27,000.

Much is in favor of having all new school buses and having the drivers directly under school control. We also continue to urge all school boards to do all in their power to curtail rising costs and to practice economy wherever feasible.

Taxation is now at the bursting point. People just can't pay anymore. School boards must also remember that their income from the one per cent earned income tax won't be nearly as great next year as it is during the present year.

All new school buses speak well for economy measures.

Hunting-Dog Story:

Old Blackie, a Labrador retriever of sorts, was an unusual mutt. On one occasion with a visiting Yankee hunter in the blind, Blackie took off when the first duck fell and WALKED across the water, retrieved the duck and returned to the thoroughly amazed hunter. Second duck, same performance.

The hunter was so astonished that he rushed from the blind to the clubhouse where one of the country's most famous writers on hunting dogs was staying. He dragged the writer down to the blind, took aim and bagged a duck.

Old Blackie ran lightly across the water and retrieved the duck, whereupon the writer asked: "What's the matter with that fool dog? Can't he swim?"

Had it not been for the dedicated conservation burning fire in Martens Goos, the City would have never secured that wonderful Richter property which will be used forever for recreation and woodland trails.

Little better than zero

CINCINNATI — The Republican Governors have blown it again.

They are the most prestigious, potentially most influential group of GOP political leaders and it is evident by now that their power at the nominating convention next month is going to be more than zero — but not much more.

All along the substantial majority of them wanted to nominate Nelson Rockefeller, but signs here are that they will end up helping to nominate Richard Nixon.

At the very least most of them were hopeful that they could build a sufficiently big bloc of favorite son delegates that would keep the nomination open for two or more ballots to see if second thoughts couldn't be generated.

It isn't working out that way. The evidence is that the favorite-son holding operation isn't holding, and the prospect is that the Republican host to this Governor's conference — Ohio's popular Jim Rhodes — knowing a trend when he sees one, may add his crucial 58-vote delegation to Nixon's total.

Today Republican Governors govern 26 states containing nearly 60 per cent of the population and possessing more than enough electoral votes to elect the next president. And what is the peak position which they will command at the convention: Deputy chairman of the platform committee.

No contest

The GOP Governors blew it in 1964 when they couldn't even find a candidate to contest Goldwater until it was too late.

They are blowing it in 1968 because — though they have a candidate the majority would prefer, Rockefeller — they simply do not have the will, the leadership, and the cohesion to do much about it.

It would be wrong to leave the impression that the Governors who like Rockefeller dislike Nixon or think his nomination would be a calamity. They think Nixon would be a good candidate but that Rockefeller would be a better one. They think that Nixon could well win but that Rockefeller would be more certain to win.

Then why, on this thinking, have the Republican Governors proved themselves so impotent in the most vital decision of the party — the choice of its presidential nominee.

Recurring, nearly every four years, there is talk that the GOP Governors, especially when they rule in the big states, will combine to exert a deciding influence on the nomination, but this concerted influence never seems to materialize.

Two reasons

There are at least two reasons this year.

One is that a considerable number of Republican Governors do not have effective control of their own party organizations either in selecting delegates to the convention or in determining whom they will support. They may be popular Governors, they may be strong Governors. For example, Volpe of Massachusetts, Agnew of Maryland, Shafer of Pennsylvania, Rhodes of Ohio, and Romney of Michigan not only can't agree on a candidate but they couldn't be sure of delivering their delegations if they could agree.

Rockefeller himself must bear some of the responsibility for the inability of the moderate governors to coalesce behind him.

In retrospect, it seems to me that he made what have proved to be three mistakes: (1) he pushed Romney when he should have gone after the nomination himself from the start; (2) when Romney faltered, Rockefeller, instead of jumping into the race, said he would not actively seek the nomination; (3) then, too late, he decided to go after it in a climate of crush desperation.

As far back as I can remember, the Republican Governors have not decisively influenced a Presidential nomination. And from the way things are now going they will not do so in the year 1968.

If the convention should surprisingly reject Nixon and Reagan in favor of Rockefeller, it won't be the governors who do it.

Don MacLean

Humor in campaign

WASHINGTON — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller — also known as "Old Better Late Than Never" — has been brainstorming his own campaign, mostly and I must say, he's giving us all a lot of laughs in an otherwise dull summer.

Now you take his idea the other day. Rocky says what is needed is a nationwide poll — of millions of people — to show leaders of the Republican party that folks really prefer him to Richard Nixon.

You've got to admit that's a funny idea, coming as it does after the last of the contested primaries. If I didn't feel Rockefeller was just pulling our collective leg, I'd think he'd never heard of the primaries.

That, of course, is where millions of people go to the polls and demonstrate to their party leaders which candidates they prefer. Richard Nixon has heard of the primaries and he entered them. And he got millions of votes. Because of this, for some strange reason, the GOP leaders think Republican voters prefer Nixon.

Another try

But apparently Rockefeller wants to hold the primaries all over again, or pretend they didn't happen or something. Maybe Nelson is convinced that there really is a great demand for him that the primaries didn't demonstrate.

However, there would seem to be some evidence to the contrary. After spending a little money, he got a whopping five percent write-in vote in Nebraska. After spending a lot of money in Oregon, where he was certain he could demonstrate his strength, he garnered a magnificent four percent of the vote.

At the rate Rockefeller is spending money now, and if we were to project the trend indicated above, he would seem likely to get NO percent in the next primary, if there were one, which there isn't.

So, I can only conclude that Rocky no longer is serious about wanting to be President (and judging from his actions now and in 1964, perhaps he never was). It is possible he is just having fun. That's what money's for isn't it? There's not much sense in being a millionaire if you can't get your name in the papers and have a good time once in a while.

I don't mean to dismiss him lightly, of course, but it's hard to do otherwise with a Presidential candidate who coyly refuses to legitimately enter the primaries and then demands that we hold one especially for him. Maybe Rockefeller plans to hold his own convention, too.

I don't know why they call this the Space Age. There doesn't seem to be enough space anywhere, especially for parking.

Newsweek says it is the magazine that separates fact from opinion. Yes. And what we get is opinion.

Saigon insists on a role in ending the war. Well, it's only had six years to end it.

Chicago gangs say they got Federal funds in return for not causing trouble. That used to be called the protection racket.

A married man is someone who has socks with the holes darned. A bachelor is a man who can afford NEW socks.

The average voter is so confused he doesn't know who he'll vote for — George Gallup or Lou Harris.

President Johnson tripped and fell down leaving the Marine Barracks here the other day. If I'd been his drill instructor he wouldn't have done that.

Medium not convinced

MANY VOICES, by Eileen J. Garrett (Putnam, $5.95.)

The autobiography of a remarkable woman — a medium possessed of considerable powers who is not absolutely certain that psychic powers as such exist.

Mrs. Garrett has certainly had unusual experiences in 50 years as a trance medium, clairvoyant and psychometrist, but she wonders whether these are the result of special powers or merely of normal faculties sharpened by the particular circumstances of her life.

She has encountered instances of what seemed clearly to be influences from beyond the grave, but she is not convinced there is a survival after death—at least, as it is usually believed to be.

Because of her questioning mind, she is an eager student of psychic phenomena and has frequently offered her services to experimenters in this field. She has found more questions than answers.

Her interests, which include book and magazine publishing, food service and hotel keeping as well as mediumship, have brought her into contact with a number of notables, and they figure in the pages of her book.

Because Mrs. Garrett's perception of life differs so widely from those of most of her readers, it is sometimes difficult to follow her speculations about them. Also—peculiarly—she has little to say about the talent for healing which appears as one of her principal gifts.

Nevertheless, "Many Voices" is an absorbing and stimulating account of an unusual life.

Fiction grows from facts

The Triumph, by John Kenneth Galbraith (Houghton Mifflin, $4.95.)

A "fable" of U.S. State Department activity in a Caribbean island nation.

Galbraith says it is all based on fact. He says that putting his ideas into fiction form is to make them better understood. Only the names are changed to protect the guilty.

The tale is of an island clearly more than geographically close to Santo Domingo. A military dictator has ruled the island for three decades, making the rich poor and the poor poorer. The fat old tyrant is benevolent only to his family and his mistresses. But Galbraith's State Department ogres value el presidente Martinez for saying he is anti-Communist.

Galbraith is a professor of note. He served as President Kennedy's ambassador to India. He is now president of Americans for Democratic Action (ADA). His prejudices clearly show.

He writes well. His description of a State Department building — an architectural version of John Foster Dulles as seen by Dulles' foes — is entertaining.

Galbraith's characters are political prejudices that talk. His ideas are not new. It is less than startling to learn that the U.S. Department of State sometimes supports foreign regimes less pure than Sunday school. But the reasons are far more complex than this fable would suggest. Maybe it would be better for Galbraith to put his arguments into fact.

Richard H. Growald

Violent deaths

The World of the Norsemen, by Eric Oxeensterna (World $10.)

From a bog in Denmark archeologists unearthed the body of a man marvelously well preserved. The body had a noose around the neck, the features were composed.

So well preserved was the body that scientists ascertain that the man had not eaten for 12 to 24 hours before he was strangled. Tests indicated the body had been in the bog for about 1,800 years.

A hundred or so other bodies, some women and children, have been found in the bogs of Scandinavia. All appeared to have been killed violently.

These and other relics of ancient days have been dug up in the north country by archeologists but have received little notice in comparison to the finds in the Near East.

Presumably these people who came to their end in the bogs were human sacrifices or were being punished for breaking some ancient law.

Count Oxeensterna writes a fascinating book about these little-known finds. The book includes 64 plates, the body of the man with a noose around his neck being one of them.

Accent on status

For Richer, For Poorer, by Kitty Hanson (Abelard-Schuman $5)

Marriage, American Style, has become a theatrical production not necessarily starring the bride and bridegroom.

The accent is on status and everybody tries to get into the act, to see and be seen and hopefully to be admired and-or envied.

When the young couple make known their intention to wed, they set in motion elaborate machinery that will propel them through the prescribed, expensive preparations and rites.

There are the announcements, invitations to the church and reception, clothing, flowers, rehearsals, orchestra, reception hall, photographer, food and liquor: All this flummery takes money—plenty of it. And of course the patsy is the father of the bride.

Miss Hanson has done a job on the commercial aspects of the modern American wedding. She expresses and documents what many have long felt about the trend toward bigger, more expensive, status-symbol weddings.

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Farm expansion

John A. Goldsmith

WASHINGTON — An immediate sizable expansion on United States farm output would result from the enactment of the long-pending bill to bar importation of Egyptian extra-long staple cotton — which has netted Nasser more than $200 million in the past 10 years.

Excluding that high-grade cotton would directly increase U.S. acreage for this crop by more than 50,000 acres — in Arizona, California, New Mexico and Texas, where this commodity is grown.

This enlarged production would add some $16 million to U.S. agriculture income.

These are among the key points Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., principal author of the measure, will make when the full Senate finally considers it this week. It has taken nearly two years of strenuous battling against State Department opposition to bring the legislation to this crucial point.

Promising outlook

On the basis of the overwhelming 274 to 64 vote when the House approved it last fall, the outlook is promising for a similar decisive majority in the Senate.

Several influential senators who were critical when the legislation was considered by the Foreign Relations Committee have since told Senator Montoya they have changed their mind and now favor it. Also, very importantly, Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations chairman, who led the State Department's fight against the bill in that committee, will not be present when it comes before the Senate.

Fulbright has been absent for weeks waging a furious campaign for a fifth term. The Arkansas primary is early next month, by which time the legislation will have been disposed of. With Fulbright away, the State Department will be without its principal spokesman on this issue.

Throughout Montoya's impending argument for the bill, he will stress its important economic advantages.

From 1963 to 1967, the drastic reduction in ELS-type cotton resulted in a loss of $64 million to our country," Montoya will tell the Senate. "With the passage of this bill, the average Egyptian importation of around 55,500 bales annually will be assigned to our farmers. Domestically, that would require about 52,100 additional acres to produce that number of bales of ELS cotton.

"If our ELS cotton farmers were permitted to grow these additional 55,500 bales, that would mean an increase of yearly production income of $16 million, plus a reduction in the cost of our ELS cotton price support and other programs of $6.5 million. While there are numerous other multiplier effects as to the economic impact on our economy that I could cite, the net effect of the enactment of this legislation would greatly benefit the United States, while at the same time expressing our displeasure at a country which severed diplomatic ties with us on an outrageously false accusation that to this day has not officially been admitted, although the whole world knows it was a deliberate lie."

Tortuous struggle

In finally bringing the bill to a Senate vote, its House and Senate sponsors have had to battle State Department hostility every foot of the way.

It took nine months to get the measure through the House, although it was approved by the Agriculture Committee there 22-2 and by the Rules Committee unanimously. But Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., at State Department behest, pigeonholed the legislation and only the threat of a bipartisan revolt finally compelled the 75-year-old Bostonian to allow it to come to a vote.

Very much the same stalling tactics occurred in the Senate.

After weeks of foot-dragging, the Senate Agriculture Committee approved the bill sponsored by Senators Montoya and Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., by an 8 to 7 vote. This cleared the way for its being taken up by the full Senate. But again weeks went by and nothing happened.

Then suddenly, in early May, while Montoya was in the hospital undergoing surgery and Anderson was attending a meeting of the Aeronautics Committee, of which he is chairman, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., had the legislation referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

This astounding piece of parliamentary skulduggery not only was almost unprecedented but breached the usual practice of senatorial courtesy.

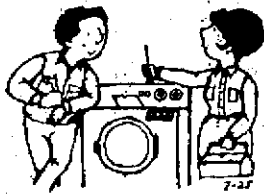

From his sick bed, Montoya protested vehemently. Mansfield belatedly gave assurances the measure would not be bottled up in Foreign Relations Committee. But once again, weeks went by and nothing happened. It appeared that Fulbright, who made no bones of his antipathy toward the bill, was bent on shelving it.

Don't stop working

Years ago, I owned a washer that was a strange little devil. For no reason at all, it would stop dead.

I would call the washer repairman, Stan, on the average of twice a month and together we could get it going. Stan said the washer was going through its change of life and that what it needed the most was understanding. For what it cost me to be understanding, I could have sent the washer to the Mayo Clinic for the summer and Stan and his family to Miami for the entire month of February.

I am older now. Wiser. And tighter with a buck! I have developed a cold impersonal detachment to washers and a business-like relationship with repairmen. Last week when my washer gurgled and refused to spin, I called my friendly repairman.

"Hello," he smiled, coming up the walk.

My mind clicked off like a computer. At $15 an hour, a simple hello would cost me 17 cents. If he continued on to the weather, and the possibility of showers and the plight of the farmers, that would run me into a three and one-half minute dialogue, which would set me back roughly 93 and one-half cents.

Deep breath. I took a deep breath. "Hello, I'm fine. I like the weather."

Austria expects to open its first national park, an area of more than 1,300 square miles, by 1970. The park, to be modeled after Yellowstone National Park, will contain the Gross Glockner, Austria's highest peak, the Grossvenediger Ridge, the Pasterze Glacier and Krimml Falls, Europe's highest.

and I'm crazy about farmers. My washer won't spin. Give me your coat. Call if you need me. He looked rather baffled so I leaned over the washer to explain, "It's nothing personal. Keep working while I talk. It's just that I can't afford to be civil...literally. For example, I had a plumber here last week. I paid $1.30 for him to tell me my plumbing had backed up in my sink. I'm a very intuitive woman. I suspected that had happened when my potato peelings over-flowed into the kitchen and crested at four feet in the hallway.

"I even have some of the figures posted here on my bulletin board to illustrate my point. Keep working, I'll read them to you. For example, if I give a house painter a glass of lemonade, it will cost me $6.70; maybe more, depending on how much I water down the lemonade. It cost me 19 cents just to yell into by grass-cutter's ear, 'Are you having a sunstroke?'

"As for septic tank cleaners, I just wave hello and bye-bye when they come and when they go. A piano tuner who was misunderstood by his wife once cost me $7.30, while a kink in a mover's back once set me back $2.80.

The washer repairman hesitated a moment and began fishing around in his back pocket.

"Don't stop!" I yelled. "What do you need? I'll do it for you."

"My handkerchief, lady," he said. "I have to blow my nose."

He blew 12 and one-half cents worth. I think he wanted to clear his throat, but after I told him about the car insurance being due and my kid's braces, he didn't have the nerve.

Baby, 16 months, injured while riding with mother

STROUDSBURG — A 16-month-old baby was injured recently in one of two, two-car accidents investigated by Stroudsburg Borough Police.

Taken to General Hospital of Monroe County, where he was treated and released, was Mark Daniels of Stroudsburg, R.D. He was a passenger in a car driven by his mother, Mrs. Lois C. Daniels.

According to police, the accident occurred at 11:43 p.m. in the intersection of Thomas and N. Eighth Streets.

The other driver was George Arnst Jr. of 1020 Fritz Ave., Stroudsburg.

Police said the Daniels car was traveling west on Thomas and the Arnst vehicle north on N. Eighth Street and the two cars collided in the intersection.

The second accident was reported at 1:38 p.m. in the intersection of Main and Ninth Streets.

The drivers were Marla S. Krakowsky of Star Route, Stroudsburg, and Phillip Shenk of Middletown, R.D. 1. The Krakowsky car was traveling north on N. Ninth

Husbands, wives agree to disagree

UNIVERSITY PARK — Who makes the decisions in the family?

Husbands overestimated and wives underestimated the number of times they would actually exercise this power, while participating in a Pennsylvania State University study.

Conducted by David H. Olson, a doctoral degree candidate, the survey consisted of a questionnaire asking couples to predict which one would make the decision in 27 different situations. After their answers were analyzed, they met with the interviewer to discuss those items on which they had disagreed.

To make the decisions seem as real as possible, questions centered around the couple's conduct after the birth of a first child—their choice of name, purchases of clothing and equipment, or feeding schedules.

Each of the 35 couples was expecting a first baby. They were all in their twenties with an average income of $6 to 7,000 a year and at least some college experience behind them.

Predictions of power on the questionnaire, Olson found, had no relationship to actual power, as it emerged in the discussion sessions. Empathy, the ability of an individual to understand the personal preferences of a spouse, tended to narrow the gap between the forecasts and reality but was not decisive.

No differences between the sexes came to light in their ability to predict who would actually exercise power. Both were equally wrong.

Agreement between husband and wife was infrequent regarding who was predicted to dominate on a particular issue.

The fact that contemporary families want to think of themselves as equalitarian may explain, Olson believes, why individuals were usually reluctant to indicate that one or the other would win out. In cases where both spouses predicted the same person would exercise power, however, this prediction was almost always correct.

Olson's research at the University was supervised by Dr. Carlfred B. Broderick and Dr. Arthur E. Gravatt. Both are associate professors of family relationships.

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — As a card-carrying member of this toy department of journalism, tripping through the trivia happily rather than pretending to corner heads of state in embarrassing bluffs of portentous candor, we do not admit, but, proudly proclaim, our international gallivanting — some 35 countries at the last unofficial customs-count — tends to skip the gutturals of German politics, the suicide-rationalizations in Scandinavia, dinners at 10 Downing St., waltzing with De Gaulle, attending premieres of emerging nations, as we concentrate fiercely on the fun available globally, locally and not on the moon.

Our firm attention is summoned by simpler things — a slight slip from chic of the great old liner Queen Elizabeth in her final Atlantic season, a talk with the head of a great London restaurant, the inexorable inability of the London stage to create a good musical comedy (not topical revues, which abound there more slipshod than on Broadway); and other of life's marginal notes, written in whipped cream, blithely.

Having skipped one season of Atlantic crossing by ship — we flew both ways last summer — we couldn't resist the final season of the Queen Elizabeth, which is being sold down the ocean to Fort Lauderdale or Philadelphia at the end of this, its last year under Cunard's honorable label.

Back in the first World War 15 months, we covered its sensational unconvoyed race across the Atlantic to escape German U-boats; our mission (for the sadly now-sunken N.Y.

World-Telegram) was to witness its passage past the Eastern tip of Long Island, which we managed in a manner of speaking: it was a gray, grimly overcast day and the then spanking-new Liz slunk quietly by on the way to safe harbor in our North River. . . . And we have sailed to Europe on this Queen half a dozen times (plus a couple aboard her sister the Queen Mary, also sold into white-painted slavery in America).

Incidentally, we happen to pay our own passage on these trips, in order that any exuberant appreciation of its whole or part might not be construed as a retroactive paid-smile for past free-sailing. . . . Therefore, it is an expensive pleasure to note the Cunard family hadn't lowered standards appreciably now that the old girl's fate had been sealed. . . .

The lone slump in total elegance was paper napkins at breakfast served in our cabin; we asked the steward and he said the old sparkling morning napery had been withdrawn in favor of paper some 18 months before and he seemed as truly sorry as if a favored relative had passed on. . . . But he brightened when we wondered if proper napkins might be reinstated upon our firm request and he said "Indeed, sir" and padded softly off to return happily with the fine large squares that saved our pajamas from cascading coffee and eggs. . . . Otherwise, the dear old Queen lumbered along, secure in its assigned de luxe fashion.

The passengers in first class as always ran a bit to white hair and multiple chins, plainly the "I Got Mine" set. . . . The Verandah Grill, a special dining room for knowledgeable first class passengers didn't have an empty table at any meal — despite the extra charge of a pound sterling ($2.40) per person as a snob-fee.

The passengers included the customary cross section, including the inevitable somewhat tipsily pathetic elderly lady with pipestem-skinny legs who managed to remain sudden from Pier 90 to Southampton and promised to let us in on all manner of "inside stories" worth saving for our return; sad lady, one on every crossing. . . . A southern banker and his wife traveling with their also-southern Coca-Cola franchise owner friend, were the most courtly humans we'd ever encountered.

Maitre D' in the Verandah Grill was a former vaudeville dancer whose theatrical flair had never quit his personality which came in handy to elaborate the tricks of preparing and lighting crepes Suzette with all manner of graceful dancing-of-hands. . . . The gentleman in charge of the ship's gymnasium was one Dom Volante, a proper cockney once European feather-weight champion, a type-cast flat-nosed little gent in his 60s who noted, "I fought eight in the U.S., the best of 'em, won seven and drew one. I was pretty good I was"; he still is.

New for the convention

A new lightweight wireless microphone-receiver will be used by NBC News television floor reporters for the first time during the 1968 Republican and Democratic national conventions. Here NBC News correspondent Edwin Newman, who will be one of them, demonstrates. In addition to their compactness and improved performance qualities, the new units will provide NBC News with six two-way communications channels for greater mobility in covering news developments in and around the convention halls. They also will enable reporters to be in constant communication with the control room while simultaneously transmitting from the floor.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Five Diamonds. North leads the queen of spades. How would you play the hand? (Assume a 4-1 trump division.)

The bidding has been:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠
Pass 4 ♠

North leads the two of diamonds and South cashes the A-K and returns the four of hearts. How would you play the hand?

1. Win the spade with the ace, draw four rounds of trump, then lead a club and follow low from dummy. This play makes the contract if you find the clubs divided 3-3 or 4-2, an 84 per cent chance. The only tricks you lose are a spade and a club.

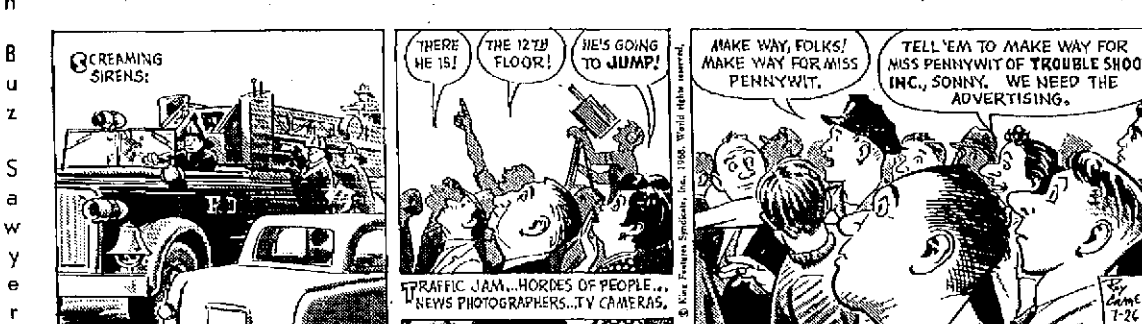

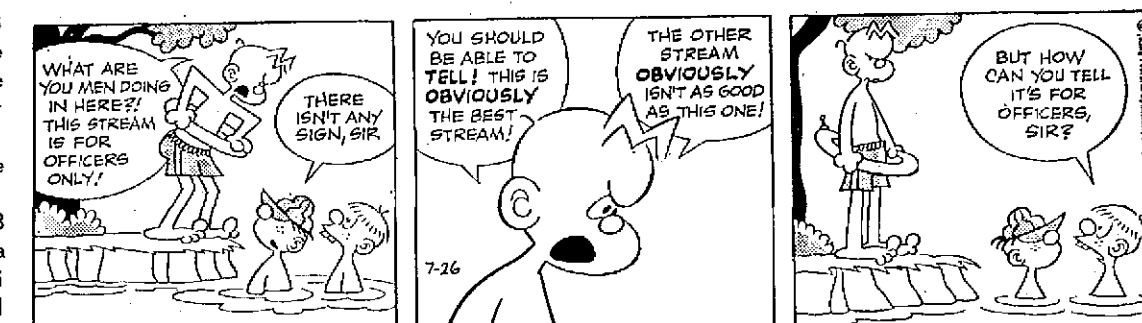

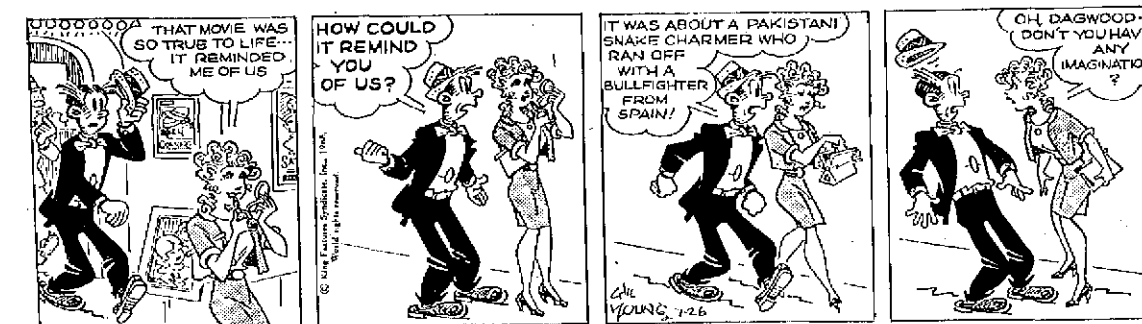

The alternative line of play, after drawing trumps, is to cash the A-K-Q of clubs in the hope of finding the suit divided 3-3, and failing that, to try to hold yourself to only one heart loser by finessing either the nine or the queen. This method of play would yield about a 75 per cent chance of success, and is therefore not quite as promising as the recommended method of play.

2. There is much more to the play than meets the eye. Strangely enough, the proper play is the three of hearts on South's four. To play the queen is sure to lead to defeat. Let's see why. You start by assuming that South has the king of spades, since you cannot make the contract unless he holds that card.

Once you make this assumption it follows that North must have the ace of hearts, since it is conceivable that South would pass originally with a hand containing the A-K of diamonds, which he has already shown up with, the king of spades, which circumstances force you to assign to him, and the ace of hearts as well.

Your only real hope is that South was dealt the J-10-x or J-10-x-x of hearts, in which case your low heart play will force our North's ace without wasting the king or queen. To play either honor instead of the three would be conceding defeat without making a real effort to avoid it.

Soloist at E-burg church

EAST STROUDSBURG — Leonard Kranendonk, who sings with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, will again sing this Sunday during services in the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Kranendonk will also sing during the 11 a.m. services in August. Robert Currier, the church's minister of music, will accompany Kranendonk.

The Rev. Harold C. Eaton will continue his sermons on the Beatitudes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Hallowell and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kistler will serve as the welcome committee during the 11 a.m. service.

Organ-piano duet feature of service

MOUNT POCONO — An organ-piano duet will highlight the 11 a.m. service in the Mount Pocono United Methodist Church Sunday.

Organist Mrs. Herbert Batrouny and pianist Mrs. Edwin Bessecker will play "The Lost Chord," by Sr. Arthur Sullivan.

Mrs. Batrouny has studied at the Julliard School of Music and has worked for both the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Mrs. Bessecker is director of music at the Mount Pocono church and organist-director at Keokee Chapel United Methodist Church. She is accompanist for the Mountain Choral Group and has played for the Central Pocono Ecumenical Conference combined choirs.

Legion urges flags flown for Pueblo

CANADENSIS — The Evans-Blitz American Legion Post 922, Barrett Township Wednesday urged all citizens to fly the American flag Sunday in a special tribute to the officers and men of the Pueblo.

The Barrett Township post's resolution honor the crew and ship, still held by the North Koreans, came on the heels of Monday's announcement by an Illinois woman congressman.

Rep. Charlotte Reid, R-Illinois, urged in a house speech that Americans fly their flags Sunday in a special salute to the officer, and men of the Pueblo.

Priest nixes lady priests

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A prominent Catholic theologian has turned thumbs down on the idea of women becoming priests.

Writing in the Vatican magazine L'Osservatore della Domenica, Msgr. Ferdinando Lambruschini said he felt such proposals were "pure fantasy and extremely hazardous." He said they could only add to "the confusion in many fields of theology."

Msgr. Lambruschini said the fact women hold high lay positions does not "automatically mean they must or can be called to take part in the priesthood."

He said it was ultimately up to higher church authority to decide the matter but its position "could not help but confirm" his.

France holds arts festival

NEW YORK (UPI) — Drama, choral and symphonic music, ballet and motion pictures will be among the attractions at the 22nd annual Avignon Festival in southern France, from July 12 to Aug. 16, says the French Government Tourist Office.

Among participating groups are the Living Theater, the National Popular Theater, the 20th Century.

quality in its ministry, according to the Rt. Rev. Frederick J. Warnecke, bishop of the Diocese of Bethlehem, Pa., and chairman of the group.

The committee was formed at the Church's 1967 General Convention in Seattle to implement recommendations of a special theological education study group headed by Dr. Nathan Pusey, president of Harvard University. The study was financed by the Episcopal Church Foundation, an organization of Episcopal laymen dedicated to aiding the spiritual and social work of the Church.

Bishop Warnecke, who is taking a six-month leave from his diocese to devote full time to the board's work, said his committee wants to help develop "better methods of recruitment and screening to assure top quality in the ministry."

"We want the Christian ministry to have an equal show on college campuses with other professions and opportunities," he said.

For 10 years, he was assistant pastor of the Calvary Independent Church in Lancaster.

Multimillion-dollar enterprise

Astrology grows into big business

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Astrology, the ancient belief that positions of the planets and stars influence human life and events on earth, today is a fast-growing, multimillion-dollar enterprise.

"It's booming," says Paul R. Grell of Washington, D.C., executive secretary of the American Federation of Astrologers. "Interest in it is about five times what it was 10 years ago, and it's getting bigger and bigger."

Both the space age, focusing concern on the moon and planets, and modern psychology, turning concern to the inner self, are seen as spurring the increased curiosity about the so-called "message of the stars."

"With all the talk of trips to the moon and about Jupiter and Saturn rockets, people are more interested in the solar system," Grell said. He says depth psychology also has played a part.

Not many years ago, as the scientific era advanced, astrology was widely discounted as humbug, and it still is considered a dubious pursuit by many. Even its most serious exponents warn of "phonies" in the field.

But the age-old art of reading the heavens now involves extensive scientific research on how planetary movements affect weather and radio communications, and swelling numbers of people look to astrology for personal insights and foresight.

Through the centuries, "there have been many attempts to knock it, but it has stood the test," says Grell. "Nobody has ever been able to disprove it through 5,000 years of unbroken history."

The upsurge of interest is reflected in soaring circulation of astrology manuals and periodicals, which has doubled in 10 years, Grell says. He estimates 10 per cent of the American population now are interested in the field.

An interdenominational magazine, Christian Herald, reports that about 1,200 newspapers now carry regular columns about astrology, 12 times that of two decades ago, and sale of literature about it now nets $150 million a year.

Astrology claims to bring out individual traits on the basis of tendencies linked to planetary positions on birth dates, and to gauge the future by characteristics and decisive past events associated with celestial patterns. Many farmers have long planted crops and weaned calves by the "signs."

Claims are made that "astrologers predicted the assassinations of John Kennedy and Julius Caesar, the Long Beach and Alaskan earthquakes, the sinking of the submarine Thresher," the Christian Herald says.

It's not a religion, but astrology has philosophical connotations, and its accumulated lore goes back to the early phases of human civilization in Mesopotamia before 3,000 B.C.

The prophet Daniel outdid the muddled astrologers in the Babylonian court of Nebuchadnezzar, saying they could not plumb the mysteries of God. Tradition says the wise men, drawn to the star of Bethlehem, were Persian astrologers.

Religious leaders have long condemned the superstitious sort of astrology that makes human beings mere puppets of the planets rather than men of free will, serving a sovereign, creative God of the entire universe.

But the conflict has eased, insofar as a more objective approach is taken to nature's impact on man. The great Swiss psychiatrist, C. G. Jung, after extensive research on astrology, concluded: "For the present, we have insufficient grounds for believing that astrology's results are more than mere chance. It is just conceivable that there is a casual connection between the planetary aspects and (psychophysiological) disposition."

As for astrology's current popularity, the Herald article by Jerome Ellison says it results mainly from "the universal human need for some sort of conceptual anchor that will ride steady through the storms of life. It is not surprising that this need becomes acute in times, such as ours, of universal threat and uncertainty."

With the rising interest, Grell says membership in the American Federation and its alliances, made up mostly of professionals, has doubled in nine years to about 1,400. Ellison reports that 5,000 Americans earn a living doing horoscopes, at from $5 to $50 apiece.

Peyote inspires Indians in religious ceremonies

DALLAS — The Huichol Indians of Jalisco, Mexico, called it "flower."

To the Taos, it was "medicine."

Much legend was built around it and when the Hippie Generation arrived in the United States, it gained new national attention.

It is peyote, a plant that causes hallucinations and plays a big part in some religious ceremonies among American Indians.

Out of the cult of peyotism evolved various churches, chiefly the Native American Church, which claims about 200,000 members among many Indian tribes in the United States. The church's one ritual and its chief ceremonial activity revolve around the use of peyote.

The peyote plant is a small and spineless cactus, shaped something like a carrot, that grows in New Mexico, Texas and northern Mexico. Only the rounded crown of the plant appears above ground. That part, cut off and dried, is the "peyote button" that is eaten.

Gilbert McAllister, of Austin, Tex., has done academic research on peyote for years.

He also has tried it.

"You put the whole button in your mouth and chew," says McAllister. "First there is nausea and vomiting. Then, presumably if you have enough in you, you have the effects. There is a tremendous feeling of euphoria and well-being. I remember just kind of floating around and thinking, 'What marvelous brotherhood.'"

In the religious, ceremonial use of peyote, the participants sit around, eat peyote and meditate. The rite is carried out in a specially marked area.

TWO GREAT LIBERATORS OF MANKIND

Since the dawn of history until nearly half of our present century had passed THE WHEEL was probably the most outstanding of all inventions. Strangely enough man failed to exploit this wonderful invention to anything approaching its full possibilities. He remained chained to his earth. He was content with the cart, the wagon, the coach and the chariot. Then with the 19th century he began to explore and to grow and from his work came our present overnight-to-anywhere age.

As with the wheel so it is with the Church, the Church which freed man from being chained in mind and spirit. Most of us have received but a small fraction of the help that it is possible to get from the Church. There is infinitely more to be had for everyone who will explore and work out greater benefaction from it.

Consumer weights discussed

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners were told Thursday by County Sealer of Weights and Measures Gerald D. Canfield that weight variances between "the amount you pay for and the amount you receive" are not uncommon.

Canfield, reporting to the commissioners six months after taking the office, said "a family of four can be gypped as much as $100 a year on short weight."

"You'd be surprised if you had a scale at home," he said. "Everybody's quart of vinegar doesn't contain the same amount."

Canfield noted that despite carefully calibrated instruments and training seminars, enforcement is difficult for him. He gave the example of a piece of short-weighted meat which "by the time the trial comes, has shrunk even more."

Also reporting to the commissioners was County Planner Leonard Ziolkowski, who will serve his last day as county planner today. Ziolkowski will go to the Planning and Development Council of Northeast Pennsylvania in Wilkes Barre where he will serve as planning coordinator.

Ziolkowski asked the commissioners to sign an application for a federal grant of $4,224.68 for the Poston Property, which is to become part of the Third St. Playground.

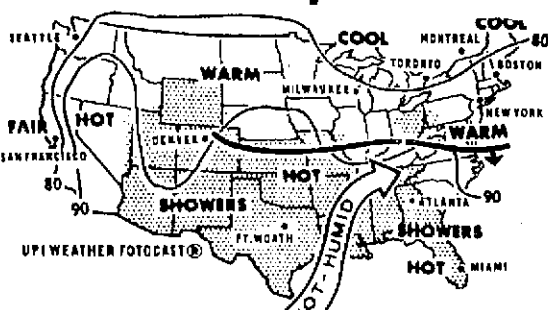

The commissioners thanked Ziolkowski for his service to the county. Ziolkowski said that when he first came to Monroe County he thought of it as a "planner's dream," and said he still believes it is.

Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Three members of the Monroe County Commissioners' Space Analysis Committee Thursday presented to the commissioners their views in favor of a plan to keep the courthouse at its present location instead of a plan to move it to a site south of Ann St.

C. A. Nauman, Attorney George Robinson and Paul Edinger told the commissioners, "We wanted to let you know why we voted as we did and to try to show you our reasons." Site Scheme Number 1, the one they supported, was favored by a majority of the committee.

Nauman began the presentation to the commissioners by telling them "The facts are not as they appear."

Final plan
He cited the final Site Plan Scheme Number 2, which was presented to the commissioners and appeared in the Pocono Record along with Scheme 1. The figures given, he said, were not for everything shown on the plan. "They're not telling you you're only going to get a new courthouse in that place," Nauman said.

Nauman told the commissioners:
—Land acquisition for the complex plus necessary street alterations would cost the county $820,695, instead of the $273,587 listed in the report of Barry Tretheway and Associates, architects.
—An estimate for reimbursement from state and local governments given in the report is meaningless, because no applications have been made or estimates received.

—The assessment loss to the borough, school districts and other such organizations would be $168,966.70 for the Ann St. plan compared to $35,000 loss for expanding the present courthouse.

—Tretheway's report did not take into consideration the necessity of widening Ann St. and South Ninth St., nor building dikes to prevent flooding in the low park area.
—A cemetery would have to be moved to carry out plan Two.

—The Civil Defense complex in the basement of the courthouse cost $200,000 to build; and a 25-year contract was signed. Nauman said the county would have to rebuild the same thing if they moved, and the cost now would probably approach half-a-million dollars.

"The sad part of this as we see it," Nauman said, "is that they show you a nice picture, but all you're going to get is the courthouse."

Economic life
Robinson cited the "disruption to economic life which for many years has centered around the courthouse" which would be caused by the move. He said there had been "no consideration except a mentioning of it" in the plan. Robinson said he would direct his remarks to the manner in which the plan was presented.

He said when he was first appointed to the Space Analysis Committee, there had been only six permanent members.

The committee, at the request of Tretheway, was later enlarged, and Robinson said he was "unhappy" that he had not been notified of the change in the number of voting members. He said he had been under the impression that new members had been placed on the committee as advisors.

Solicitor Elmer Christine said that he had thought only Robert Pinder, head of the Stroudsburg Planning Commission, had been appointed after the original six as a voting member.

But Commissioner Arlington W. Martin, chairman of the committee, noted that it was his thought that "since advisory members were there at more meetings than many of the other members, it would be logical that their voices should be heard."

Under fire
Bruce Frassinelli, a member of the committee who drew up and presented the committee's report to the commissioners, also came under fire. Robinson said he was disturbed that the committee had not been given a chance to vote on the report before it was presented.

Park service will begin nature hikes

KITTATINNY POINT, N.J. — The National Park Service will this weekend inaugurate a series of nature hikes led by park personnel, leaving from the information center at the Kittatinny Point.

An all-day hike will leave at 10 a.m. for Sunfish Pond. Those making the hike should bring their own lunches.

There will also be two two-hour hikes up Dunnfield Hollow, leaving at 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. On Sunday, there will also be the Dunnfield Hollow hikes at 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m., but no hike to Sunfish Pond.

This is a new service to residents and vacationists provided by the Park Service and is open to anyone interested. Sturdy walking shoes are advised.

The new program is in addition to the campfire programs held each Friday and Saturday night at 8:45 p.m. at the Worthington Tract on the New Jersey side of the Delaware across from Shawnee.

Frassinelli explained that he and E. H. Staples, each of whom had taken an opposite view on the site plans, had been chosen to draw up the report.

Staples became ill soon after, Frassinelli said, and he has not been able to talk with him the four times he tried to get in touch with Staples.

Martin backed up Frassinelli, saying that he too had waited for an answer from Staples who had been ill, but he had been under the impression that Staples would be able to get back to him.

Edinger told the commissioners that he thought the courthouse should stay where it is. He said Nauman was "conservative" with his figures, and the real cost of moving the courthouse would be closer to four or five million. He gave as an example the cost of building at the college.

Edinger noted that attorneys going from their offices to the new courthouse site would have two main arteries of traffic to cross, Main and Ann St. Both Edinger and Nauman mentioned the land beneath the Ann St. site. Edinger said it was largely quicksand, which had been a lot of trouble in the laying of sewer lines along Ann St., and also in the construction of the YMCA on Main St.

When asked about the long-term possibilities for expansion at each site, Robinson said that although site two "obviously has more room for expansion, it would be rash to look past 10 years, the way things are now."

Planner leaves memories

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County telephone directory lists 16,740 names in its white pages. Leonard Ziolkowski's name appears on the last page, 16,714th.

But when Ziolkowski leaves his chief county planner post today he will be remembered as not one of the last but one of the first in helping to map out a brighter future for the county and its people.

Ziolkowski, an assistant regional supervisor for the Pennsylvania Department of Community Affairs in Pittsburgh, left that post in March, 1965, to accept the newly formed position of executive director of the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission.

He lost no time in urging a then complacent and stubborn county planning commission to push through a county subdivision regulation which would insure proper development and use of land.

Office flooded
The planners adopted the subdivision regulations in July, but not before land developers sensing the wind was up for tight subdivision restrictions, flooded the county recorder's office with thousands of subdivision plots in the spring of that year.

The subdivision regulations proved to be the necessary safety brake in insuring proper county land development.

During 1967, the planner's subdivision review committee reviewed and approved 39 subdivision plots in the county. These 39 plots contained 1,659 lots which averaged approximately three-quarters of an acre and usually were subdivided with the intention of installing on-lot wells and septic tanks.

Ziolkowski wants Monroe County to go "first class" in all its services to the community. But he insists on an orderly growth pattern.

"We should plan and build something right the first time," he said Thursday in his Stroudsburg office. "We should stimulate excellence in the private and public sector as well as a broad base communication between township, borough, county, state and federal agencies."

Willing to pay
He said he was willing to pay for excellence if Monroe County wants to compete successfully with other Northeastern Pennsylvania counties. He listed some of the highlights of the Planning Commission's accomplishments during 1967:

— a county water and sewer study, a county organization and fiscal analysis study, the space analysis study and the Tocks Island Planning District Study, cooperation with various local agencies, a basic county mapping program and a county seasonal home study.

The constant delay in federal funds for the county's 701 urban planning assistance program was probably the chief fly in the ointment during the last two years in which Ziolkowski had to report to the planning commission members nearly every other monthly meeting that once again there was a delay in 701's funds.

"We couldn't dovetail working capital to perform the needed studies because of the had timing in receiving the federal funds," Ziolkowski said. "The fund's constant delay forced us to reshuffle our priorities."

Ziolkowski's working time table during his first year as the planner's executive director was a throwback to slave labor. After putting in a regular 9 to 5 day, he attended four week nights out of five meetings which on an average began at 7 p.m. and lasted until 11 p.m.

Monroe County's future lies in its lap, a bountiful lap due to its geographical advantage, according to Ziolkowski.

The interstate highway system flows directly into one of the largest transportation areas in the county, he said.

He sees the county's large open space holdings not only offering raw land development but other inducements for commercial and industrial development.

He predicted a fine highway system in the next five to 10 years and he recommended an increase in air and rail facilities.

"The railroads will make a comeback," he said, "once they get government subsidies that the airlines are now enjoying."

He believes that in the near future high speed trains will hold their own against the airlines which are feeling the frustrations of crowded airports.

Change in character
He sees a change in the character and clientele of the county resorts and the need for updating their physical plants so that they will be able to compete with motels such as the Holiday Inn and the proposed Howard Johnsons.

He would like to see the spawning of new towns in the Pocono Mountains. "I wouldn't like to see these mountains go the way of a suburbia," he said.

He named three county areas where towns could be developed: Tobyhanna Village, Brodheadsville and Blakeslee.

He also sees a need for the merging of local banks.

But his number one frustration was the fulfillment of his pet project: Stokes Mill Park. "It's now in limbo but in the future I hope to see it reactivated," he said.

And last, but not least, in his eyes are the people of Monroe County.

"When I first came here the people were cold and suspicious. I expected it. And in time their attitudes mellowed. I'm going to hate leaving some of those strong friendships," he said.

Heart Assn. picks director

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Shirley Cummings, 435 Quentin Road, Stroudsburg, has been appointed field representative of the Eastern Branch, Keystone Heart Assn.

The announcement of the appointment was made by Martin S. Baldwin, chairman of the board of the association. The appointment will be effective Monday, August 5.

Mrs. Cummings succeeds Mrs. Dorothy Oliver, who resigned on July 1.

In her new position, Mrs. Cummings will serve Monroe, Wayne and Pike counties. Her office is located at 509 Scott St. Stroudsburg.

Prior to her appointment, Mrs. Cummings had been associated with B.C. Morton Organization, Inc., a mutual fund company, as branch manager.

G. S. A. files for E-burg property

STROUDSBURG — The Pennsylvania General Sales Authority entered a Declaration of Taking and Notice for the property of Rose E. Morrie, East Stroudsburg, in the Prothonotary's Office of the Monroe County Courthouse.

The property will be used for construction of a Dining Hall and Kitchen and Women's Dormitory for East Stroudsburg State College.

Also, the GSA deposited an $18,000 bond in the Prothonotary's Office for Miss Morrie's property at 232 Normal St., East Stroudsburg, and a $3,000 bond for her property at 215 Smith St., East Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Cummings had been associated with B.C. Morton Organization, Inc., a mutual fund company, as branch manager.

Other positions which Mrs. Cummings has held are former superintendent and of Pleasant Valley Manor, former president of the Stroudsburg Junior Women's Club, and former Administration Consultant to Cherry Valley Convalescent Hotel, Inc.

She is a graduate of East Stroudsburg State College and in 1943 was graduated and commissioned from the Marine Corps Officer Candidate School.

Park land purchased for $221,850

STROUDSBURG — A Declaration of Taking for property for the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, signed by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor, was filed Thursday in the Register and Recorder's Office of the Monroe County Courthouse.

The approximately 222.93 acres of land, all in Smithfield Township, was estimated to be worth $221,850.

Purported owners of the land, and the amounts they own, as stated in the papers, are:

Fairway Realty Corp., Delaware Water Gap, and the Water Gap Country Club, lessee, 31.47 acres of land valued at $121,900.

Wilbur and Rita Nordt, 50 W. Front St., Red Bank, N.J., and Joseph A. and Genevieve Dollbaum, address unknown, 3.01 acres worth $1,000.

Louis and Alice Alida Warneke, East Stroudsburg RD 1, 45.73 acres valued at $13,750 and 23.63 acres valued at $33,500.

Francis Hickok and Jean Erdman, William James II and Betty Erdman of Princeton, N.J., and Thomas Kenworthy, and tenants William and Viola Ehrgood, East Stroudsburg RD 1, 103.65 acres valued at $50,000.

George K. and Kathryn W. Brands, address unknown, 9.44 acres valued at $2,600.

Pocono Patter

Big item lost

Anybody mislay a pony lately? If so, George Ratzmann of Cordial Cottages, Swiftwater, has one he doesn't know what to do with.

The brown and white pony, dragging its anchor chain, appeared at his house Thursday. "I don't even know what to feed it," he said somewhat plaintively. Meanwhile he's tied the pony near some lush grass and given it water.

Poly back home

"Poly" McClintock, famed drummer for Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, has been discharged from the General Hospital of Monroe County, where he was a surgical patient.

McClintock was one of the original members of the Pennsylvanians.

Florida Siesta

Marty Baldwin is dashing off to Florida for a week, where he plans to rest in the midst of the summer silence.

Marty has also been a winter resident of the Sunshine State in recent years.

Pen pals

Ralph Repper, manager of the Stroudsburg office of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., has a pen pal.

The pal's name is Ralph Repper and he writes for a Baltimore, Md., newspaper.

Recently, Stroudsburg's Ralph received a clipping from his journalist friend, whose subject was "Ralph Repper and his Electric wife." No pun intended.

Big N wins opener in LL playoffs

STROUDSBURG — The Big N moved to within one win of clinching the seasonal title in the Stroudsburg Little League Thursday night.

Mike Coleman's single in the bottom of the sixth inning snapped a 3-3 tie and gave the Big N a 4-3 win over Wyckoff-Sears in the opening game of the best two-of-three series.

The winners scored twice in the bottom of the fifth to knot the score and tallied the winning run on a walk, and singles by Brian O'Melko and Coleman in the bottom of the sixth.

Winning pitcher Eric Dressler allowed only four hits and went 3 for 3. Keith Fehr was touched for seven hits in absorbing the loss.

The second game in the series is scheduled for 6 p.m. tonight at the S-burg Little League Field.

Al Ferrara wins divorce

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Al Ferrara Thursday was granted a default divorce when he testified his wife threatened to have him shot at Shea Stadium in New York.

Ferrara testified that on May 13, 1967, his wife, Angela, 27, Brooklyn, N.Y., telephoned him and swore at him.

"She said she would see to it that I was shot so that this affected my playing when I was at Shea Stadium. I was highly nervous and upset," the 28-year-old ballplayer told Superior Judge Robert A. Wenke.

He also said that his wife said "I was a baseball burn and I put a disgrace on my family and son."

The couple was married Feb. 11, 1961, in Brooklyn and separated April 15, 1965. Mrs. Ferrara, then a resident of Spokane, Wash., received separate maintenance later that year.

Raiders release three rookies

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders of the American Football League announced Thursday the release of three rookies, bringing the squad down to 63.

Cut from the roster were James Ray Jackson, defensive back from the University of Oklahoma; Charlie O'Neal, fullback from Mississippi Industrial, and Mike Carroll, a wide receiver from New Mexico State.

The squad continued two-a-day drills in full battle gear. No serious injuries have been reported in the past six days.

Carol Mann leads Supertest by two

TORONTO (UPI) — Defending champion Carol Mann, the leggy 6-foot-3 blonde took the first round lead with a four-under par 69 Thursday in the Ladies Supertest Open golf tournament.

Miss Mann, 27, the leading money winner on the women's tour, shot a consistent round with five birdies, one bogey and 12 pars to take a 2-stroke lead over her nearest competitors, two pros and an amateur, tied at 76.

Miss Mann, who was given the title at last week's tourney in Cincinnati on a slow play penalty against leader Marilyn Smith, said she "felt very badly" about the incident. "I think I was the one who was hurt most by the decision," she added.

Tied for second at 71 were Pam Barnett of Charlotte, N.C., Sandra Spuzich of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Marlene Streit of Toronto, one of Canada's leading amateurs.

Mrs. Streit, former U.S. Women's amateur champion, had four birdies and two bogeys. She said her birdie on the first hole "got me off to a good start" over the rolling, 6,257-yard Bayview course.

Miss Spuzich, who tied for third in the recent tournament at Columbus, had a four-under par 33 on the front nine but fell behind on the last nine.

"I could have made a lot more putts than I did," she said.

Miss Barnett, 24, shot a 35 on the par 37 front nine, and said she would have done better if she had not three-putted on the sixth hole. On the 12th hole, she landed next to a fence and had to use a backhand swing to get onto the green.

Tied for fifth place at 72 were 50-year-old Patty Berg of West Chicago, Ill., and Clifford Ann Creed of Largo, Fla.

The only Canadian pro on the ladies' tour, Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., was well back in the first round standings, shooting a six-over par 78.

There are many definitions of the word "amateur." Jack Kramer liked to think it was a guy who "wouldn't take a check." Doc Kearns always said it was "a guy who gets paid off in the dark." In unmarked money, Jack Hurley summed up the breed with a fervent "God deliver me from amateurs!" His point was, when a guy gets paid off in a closet, you got no beef coming if he skips off with the money and doesn't show. A guy committing larceny to begin with has no license to holler copper.

But, strictly on competitive merits, the word "amateur" means one thing to the fan in the bleachers: inferior. Don't the Green Bay Packers beat those college kids every year? Wasn't Pete Rasmussen funny against Floyd Patterson? When is the last time an amateur won the U.S. Open? Has one EVER won the Masters?

Shoot! In golf, the miss-hit putt is identified as going on the "amateur" side of the hole. If you want to compliment a friend, you address him as "pro" as in "nice shot, pro!"

It gives me therefore great pleasure to announce that at least in one sport — tennis — the line of demarcation between an amateur and a pro is as invisible on the court as is in the counting house. The first Open tennis tournament in history at Wimbledon was a sports shocker on the order of Rutgers beating the Rams, a two-handicapper weekend golfer

AL crowds 400,000 ahead of '67

BOSTON (UPI) — American League attendance is running nearly 400,000 ahead of the record 1967 pace, according to figures released Thursday by president Joe Cronin.

The statistics, which are based on actual paid attendance rather than the turnstile figures announced daily by the clubs, showed total attendance of 6,718,250 through games of July 21.

The comparable figure in 1967 was 6,322,279. Cronin's office said, for an increase of 395,971. American League teams drew an all-time high of 11,356,923 during the wild four-way 1967 pennant race.

Much of the current increase was attributed to the first place Detroit Tigers, who have already broken the million mark in home attendance and are 343,251 ahead of the comparable date last season. The defending champion Boston Red Sox are 258,107 ahead of their 1967 pace while Cleveland's home attendance has increased by 104,125.

The league report showed the Tigers and Red Sox setting the million-plus pace.

Other July 21 totals as reported by American League headquarters include Minnesota 700,717; New York, 687,608; California, 664,102; Oakland, 537,806; Cleveland, 522,939; Baltimore, 516,800; Chicago 487,558; and Washington, 367,056.

Tennis compliment

taking Jack Nicklaus through extra holes in an Open playoff. Harvard making the World Series, a YMCA fighter winning a heavyweight elimination, or the kid in a crowd at the carnival coming up on stage to flatten or pin the world's champ.

Laver maintains image Rodney George Laver, a southpaw who hits the tennis ball so hard he wears out a racket a set and who has a mound of fuzz at his feet after his first serve, won the tournament. Rodney George is a pro. So far, so good. The volunteers from the audience get carried out after all. Green Bay beats the kids with a last minute drive for a touchdown. Nicklaus closed out the two-handicapper with a birdie on the 21st extra hole as the kid drove into the rough.

But, consider that, of the first dozen pros put out at Wimbledon, 10 were sent packing by amateurs! And the boys who play for hardward (and "expenses") were not picking solely on spavined old-timers whose reputations had outlasted their prowess. Pancho Gonzales and Lew Hoad, to be sure, fell. But so did Roy Emerson, Cliff Drysdale, Fred Stolle, John Newcombe and Andres Gimeno. Thus, amateurs eliminated the Nos. 3, 4 and 5 seeds in that tournament, and tennis couldn't have been more shocked by a belch from the Royal Box.

All manner of excuses have been served up, most of them double faults. The real reason lies in the fact that the pro game historically has been as exclusive as the Senate Cloak Room, and the players in it play such an incestuous competition that they beat (or lose to) each other almost by rote. The bushy-tailed amateurs introduced a new element to the game — surprise, the unexpected. Also, enthusiasm.

A boost to the sport The whole has had an extraordinary salutary effect on a game that was verging on the extinct as a spectator sport. Once again, we will have the best players in the world at Wimbledon, Forest Hills, the Pacific Southwest and not the amateur residue.

Rod Laver is one who is leaping over the net at the development. It has, he feels, given new impetus to the pro tour which is appearing at the Forum in Inglewood tonight. A $90,000-a-year player, Laver, who may be history's best, welcomes the infusion of amateur blood even if it means diffusion of dollars. "The greatest thing that could happen to the game," is his evaluation.

One has to agree. "Amateurism" is an anachronism, as obsolete as sword-wearing, the Hapsburg Empire, the player piano. It takes tennis out of the servants' quarters, abolishes athletic slavery. If a man has a talent people will pay to see, he should be able to take his cut by check, in unmarked money, or in broad daylight, or all three.

That way he can buy his own silverware, and not have to get his money thrown out of a passing car or slipped under a door like a ransom in a kidnapping.

AL purchases contracts of 3 minor league umpires

BOSTON (UPI) — President Joseph Cronin announced Thursday the American League had purchased the contracts of three minor league umpires, including a former baseball player and a former collegiate football star, expanding the league staff to 27.

The contracts of Donald Denkinger of Cedar Falls, Iowa, and Ronald Luciano of Endicott, N.Y. were purchased from the International League while ex-minor leaguer Arthur Prantz of Rochester, N.Y. was acquired from the Pacific Coast League.

The announcement marks the first step in the league's 1968 expansion when four new umpires will be needed after franchises are established in Kansas City and Seattle. The league noted that all three will continue to work in their respective leagues for the present.

Denkinger broke into umpiring in 1960 in the Alabama-Florida

League, worked two years in the Northwest League, three years in the Texas League and since 1966 in the International League.

Luciano umpired in the Florida State League and the Eastern League before joining the International League staff.

Luciano was a tackle at Syracuse University in 1958 and later played with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League and the Buffalo Bills of the AFL.

Prantz is a former minor league player who was at various times listed as a pitcher, catcher, infielder and outfielder in both the International League and the American Association.

He's been an umpire since 1959, working in the New York-Penn League and the Puerto Rico winter circuit before joining the PCL staff in 1963.

Diocese drive at $3 million

SCRANTON — Cash payments on pledges made to the Diocese of Scranton program, "Project: Expansion" has now reached $3,097,431. This latest figure accounts for 25.7 per cent of the $12,030,405 pledged to date in support of the program.

Active solicitation for funds to help finance the construction of homes for the elderly, day care centers for the retarded, new high schools and other diocesan undertakings ended in early April with a total in cash received of $1,889,860. Payments from the more than 36,000 donors in April, May and June totaled $1,227,571. Approximately 75 per cent of the donors chose to make their payments on the installment basis over a 30-month period.

The Scranton diocese includes Catholic parishes in Monroe County.

This new high for cash received on pledges has been greatly aided by the fine cooperation of the Continuation Committees in each of the 236 parishes throughout the Diocese. Especially noteworthy is the work of the parish volunteer secretaries who once a month prepare a reminder which is mailed to those donors who have selected the monthly payment plan. The third Sunday of each month has been set aside as pledge payment Sunday.

Announcements were recently made concerning the purchase of land for the new Central Catholic High School in Hazleton and the acquisition of sites for a day school for retarded children in Scranton and a new Central Catholic High School in Wilkes-Barre.

New approaches in psychiatry

UNIVERSITY PARK — One of the biggest movements in psychiatry during the last decade has been the explosive growth in psychiatric research. In the last eight years, the research effort at the University of Pennsylvania alone has doubled and redoubled as research psychiatrists have developed new approaches to some of the most difficult to cure of the psychiatric disorders.

A good example of this kind of development is the research being conducted by Dr. John Paul Brady, a University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist who has been applying "behavior therapy" to the treatment of problems such as severe stuttering, phobias, smoking, and over-eating.

When he applies behavior therapy to a patient's problems, Dr. Brady explains, he is trying to apply some of the information about learning and behavior that has been acquired in the psychology laboratories in the last few decades. Instead of trying to help the patient understand his unconscious conflicts, he tries to help the patient change his patterns of behavior. Dr. Brady doesn't discount the importance of unconscious conflicts but he believes that insight into the unconscious conflicts is often unnecessary. Behavior therapy, he says, can often achieve results faster than the more traditional "dynamic" psychotherapy—therapy that focuses on the attempt to achieve insight. And in many cases, he believes, the unconscious conflicts of people who stutter or smoke may not be the real cause of their problems. "I've made a thorough study of the literature on stuttering," Dr. Brady says, "and I've found no convincing evidence that personality problems are the root of most stutterer's problems. Most of the stutterer's problems stem from his stuttering, in fact. Clear up the stuttering and many of his other problems will start clearing up, too."

And many stutterers do not respond to dynamic therapy, Dr. Brady adds. "Some patients," he says, "may undergo intensive psychoanalytic treatment for years and still stutter."

"Psychiatric disability is a major public health problem in the United States," Dr. Brady says. "If we're going to meet this challenge successfully, we need techniques that are more efficient than those we often employ now. With behavior therapy, we can often treat phobias and other disorders in considerably less time than other techniques usually take. And there is a real possibility some behavioral techniques can eventually be applied by people who are less highly trained than a psychiatrist. Some of the techniques we're using on stuttering, for example, could be applied by a speech therapist working under the supervision of a psychiatrist."

When he begins working with a patient, Dr. Brady explains, he has the patient make up a schedule of his day and he tries to determine two things: the exact conditions under which the patient's symptoms occur and the things that happen after the symptoms occur. If he is treating a patient who wants to give up smoking, for example, he tries to find out exactly who was present when the patient smoked, whether the patient was tired or frustrated, what effects smoking had on his feelings at the time, and so on. "Then I ask myself where

I can interrupt this process," Dr. Brady says, "and I look for substitute activities. If I were treating myself for smoking, for example, I might discover I smoke mainly in the office in between seeing patients. And I might start getting up and going for a walk in the hall at those times instead."

Celler predicts gun law

WASHINGTON (AP)—A leading congressional supporter of gun control legislation predicts the House will approve President Johnson's embattled proposal to restrict the sale of rifles, shotguns and ammunition.

The prediction was made by Judiciary Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., after the House spent seven hours Tuesday wading through amendments to ready a measure for today's expected final vote.

Celler's opposite number in the Senate, Judiciary Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., declared his opposition to a similar bill called up for simultaneous action in his committee.

"I hope the committee will kill all the gun bills," Eastland said.

Among the amendments tacked onto the bill Tuesday was one proposed by the National Rifle Association, a prime enemy of stiffer gun laws.

Sponsored by Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., it would exempt the National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice from the prohibition of interstate shipment of firearms and ammunition.

The board, a military-civilian governing body, works closely with the NRA in the holding of rifle and pistol matches.

Sikes, a lifetime member of the NRA, said, "We can live with the bill the way it is."

Another amendment, sponsored by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., also an opponent of gun controls, would permit licensed gun collectors who deal in guns as relics and curios to buy and sell firearms across state lines.

"Under this amendment any self-styled collector could acquire firearms through the mail," argued Celler.

The House also adopted an amendment that for all practical purposes would leave only ammunition for pistols and revolvers prohibited from sale through the mails.

The House rejected an attempt to require the states to give mandatory prison sentences to persons convicted of using a firearm in the commission of any felony. Last Friday, the body adopted an amendment requiring mandatory sentences for persons convicted of a crime while using a firearm in the commission of a federal felony.

Regardless of what form a gun control bill finally takes if and when it emerges from Congress, one thing seems certain at this point: There will be no provisions for the licensing and registration asked by Johnson after he first pressed Congress for a ban on interstate mail-order sales of rifles and shotguns and over-the-counter sales of long guns to residents of nonadjacent states.

Johnson also asked for bans on sales of ammunition and on sales of all guns to people under 18.

Ike still admires Barry

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said in a statement issued through his office here Tuesday that he has "the highest respect and the warmest personal regard for Barry Goldwater."

The statement from the five-star general, who is in Walter Reed Hospital in Washington recovering from a heart attack, apparently was inspired by published reports hinting at possible estranged relations between the two men.

Ann Landers

Husband blows top

Dear Ann Landers: Our dog Rags was a faithful family friend for nearly 14 years. Since Christmas Rags had been moving so slowly it was painful for me to watch him. His eyesight was nearly gone and he kept bumping into things. I mentioned to my husband that perhaps it would be best if we had the vet put Rags to sleep. My husband blew his top — said it would be like murdering a friend. I never mentioned it again.

Friday evening I let Rags out for a few minutes and the first thing I knew he was involved in a three-dog fight. I ran out immediately Rags was not hurt but he was breathing hard. Ten minutes later I saw him lying under the table very still. I knew at once he was dead.

I drove Rags to the vet although I was sure it was too late. The vet said he had died of a heart attack.

When my husband came home I told him the bad news immediately. He flew into a rage — said I had killed his dog because of my stupidity — that I had let him get into the fight. He phoned relatives and told them I was an idiot and a murderer. (My sister hung up on him.)

Three days have passed and he still refuses to speak to me.

Please tell me what to do about this awful situation.

—Not Guilty

Dear Not: There's no point trying to talk sense to a man who is not rational, so stop trying. Eventually your husband will recover from his grief and settle down. Perhaps if you bought him another dog it would help. I recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have yet to read a kind word in your column about a mother-in-law. If one is to be said it will have to come from a reader because you are clearly against them.

Your portrayal of the typical mother-in-law is unfair. You see her as a horned creature who clings desperately to her son (or daughter)—a domineering shrew who makes trouble, spoils the grandchildren and insists on being included in vacations.

My mother-in-law is the kindest, wisest, most considerate woman in the world. She keeps her life filled with interesting things and we consider ourselves lucky when we can get her company. Our children adore her and value her opinion. Our friends often include her when they send us an invitation, but she rarely accepts.

I recall vividly when my husband and I were newlyweds (10 years ago) and we became involved in an argument. My husband turned to his mother and said, "What is your opinion?" She thought a moment and replied, "My opinion is worthless. This is between you and your wife. The only opinions that count are yours."

I am asking you to print this letter because I'm sure there must be other wonderful mothers-in-law who do not fit the image your column portrays. They deserve a good word.

—Love My Mother-In-Law

Dear Love: Here's your letter, and with it I'm blowing a kiss to that great lady. I know there are such mothers-in-law in the world, because I have one too.

Military worries about dogfights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate testimony has disclosed that professional military men express serious concern about whether U.S. aircraft could match the Soviet Union's jets in aerial dogfights for control of the skies.

Gen. John P. McConnell, the Air Force chief of staff, called it imperative that the United States move as fast as possible to develop a new FX fighter to counter the threat.

While the Soviet Union now has a new Foxbat jet which may be the fastest plane in the world, McConnell said the main U.S. fighter remains the F4 which will be 15 years old in the mid-1970s.

McConnell and other military experts testified at hearings before the Senate preparedness subcommittee in May and early June.

The censored testimony, made public Sunday, revealed a continuing gulf between military and civilian leaders in the Pentagon.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a former secretary of the Air Force, told a top-ranking civilian official, "All the experts I know feel we have lost our desire to control the air, and that therefore if we had a fight, unless we went to nuclear weapons, we would lose the air control."

Asst. Secretary of Defense Alain C. Enthoven replied speed is not the only factor in air-to-air combat and mentioned missiles, long-range radar, and the ability to destroy the enemy's ground bases. He argued the United States remains superior in air power, even though the numbers of Communist and allied aircraft are now about equal.

Symington drew out testimony that the Soviet Union has developed 11 new fighter models in the last decade to six for the United States.

Gen. G. P. Disosway, retiring as head of the Tactical Air Command, called the new Soviet air-to-air combat ability "a most serious concern to us."

McConnell agreed and said, "That is the reason I consider it absolutely imperative that we proceed as fast as we can with the FX aircraft."

McConnell said the FX is now slated to be a lightweight, fast fighter meant primarily for air combat.

Events hurt Fortas confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Testimony during Senate committee hearings into President Johnson's Supreme Court appointments has hurt chances that Abe Fortas will be confirmed as chief justice, according to a leading supporter of the nomination.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., says opponents of the nomination picked up much ammunition during Senate Judiciary Committee hearings into the naming of Fortas, now an associate justice, to succeed retiring Earl Warren.

Hart said that Fortas' refusal to answer questions about his decisions, his acknowledged participation in White House conferences since becoming a member of the court, and testimony attacking his rulings in obscenity cases all provide grist for the opposition.

What happens in the Senate, Hart said, will depend in part on whether Republican opponents decide that fighting his appointment will be "More of a plus than a minus for them politically."

The committee, called into closed session today, seems unlikely to finish its hearings in time for the full Senate to act before September on the nominations, which includes the appointment of federal Judge Romanus T. Thornberry to be an associate justice.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he never predicts what the committee may do, but told newsmen he could not conceive of the Fortas nomination being brought up in the Senate before September.

Congress is expected to recess at the end of next week until after Labor Day because of the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

The committee concluded nine days of public hearings Tuesday on a sensational note when Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., displayed magazines with pictures of nude men and women in suggestive poses and said that distribution of such "hard-core pornography" has become much worse since Fortas has been a Supreme Court justice in 1965.

The final witness was Deputy Atty. Gen. Christopher Warren, who was called for questioning about a Justice Department memorandum reviewing Fortas' service on the Supreme Court and crediting him with "an unusual degree of judicial restraint."

Hart said he had requested the department to prepare the memorandum, but Sen. Sam J.

Ervin, Jr., D-N.C., called it an attempt at "propagandizing the committee."
